Kiwanis Summer Horse Show in Carmel Valley this Sunday

The annual Kiwanis Summer Horse Show is scheduled on Sunday at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club Grounds on East Garzas Road beginning at 8 a.m. with the first judging of 54 classes in both Western and English riding.

Bill Reordan is the show secretary of the 1978 fundraiser. Proceeds of the project are distributed each year to underwrite numerous community activities by the Valley organization with emphasis on youth.

The event, approved by Region 10 and the California State Horsemen's Association, will be judged by Curtis Nelson for the Western Division; Peter Primiani, English Division and Peter Pedrazzi, Trail and Halter Judge.

Admission is free for the day-long program and camera buffs are welcome. Food may be purchased at the chuck wagon. It will be prepared by Raz Belleci and cookhouse hands Dick Krueger, Mac McCullough, Ed Marcucci, John Monroe and Ed Mosieur. Beverages will be served at "the well" by John Tobias and his crew of Harry Baker, Don Campbell, Jerry Kurz, Randy Randazzo and Gary Tate.

There is plenty of parking around the corrals where you will find Orville Rogers and fellow members Jack Clark, Joe Ricupero and Dick Scammon waiting to assist you.

Mike Rohan is chairman of the English Ring with committee members Augie Acuna, Ray Foster, Bernie Friedman, Sam Hermes, Jim McAloon and Chester Sargent.

Chairman Otto Huebner with Getty Fairchild, Jim Luttrell and Joe Sigfried will man the back gate and utilities are controlled by Chairman Lee Mink with Joe Fischer, Dick Hindman and Phil Smith.

Awards chairman Harold Fly has Frank Young, Larry Gardner, Rex White and Lou Gardner assisting with trophies and ribbons.

YOUNG HORSEMEN are shown lined up for one of the events in last year's Summer Horse Show at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. This year's show is scheduled for Sunday, July 9. Spectators are welcome; admission is free.

Master plan advisors start marking Valley map

By KEN PETERSON

PUTTING PEN TO paper, the Carmel Valley Master Plan Advisory Committee, for the first time, has begun defining specific areas where it wants to see growth in the Valley. It also is recommending specific land uses for some parcels within development zones.

The committee, now 18 months into its work of revising the 1965 master plan, agreed early on that it wants to concentrate growth in the areas around the mouth of the Valley, the Mid-Valley Shopping Center and the Valley Village.

But the 13-member citizens group now is making parcel-by-parcel determinations in some areas to decide whether multi-family housing, commercial development or low-density house development should be permitted.

The committee meets tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Manor. All of its meetings are open to the public.

The map used by the committee as a basis for the land use recommendations was developed by committee members Don Middleton, Virginia Drew and Jerri Foote. Middleton and Mrs. Drew are real estate agents; Mrs. Foote is a member of the Monterey County League of Women Voters.

The three originally intended to present a report on the Village area alone, but produced the land use map for the whole Valley for consideration two weeks ago.

The presentation surprised many members of the committee, including Jack Van Zander, a Valley resident employed by Bestor Engineers Inc. He complained that the group was doing what it had ruled out earlier: making specific parcel recommendations. Van Zander chaired the land use subcommittee which would have made such a report.

IN MORE THAN six hours of discussion over the past two weeks, the committee was able to reach some agreements on land use. These include:

- That the 42-acre strip of agricultural land along Val Verde Drive adjacent to the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center be zoned for single-family houses on one-acre lots, with four units per acre permitted if cluster housing is developed.
- That the Mathias property, on the north side of Carmel Valley Road a half mile east of the Village, be rezoned for a resort hotel development.
- That Carmel Valley Ranch be given an additional 18 units for development if it constructs low-cost apartment housing for employees of the proposed 500-unit home, condominium and hotel development.
- That the commercial zoning in the Village be reduced and replaced by multi-family zoning in some areas. Commercial zoning in Mid-Valley would remain unchanged.

The committee agreed unanimously that all minor subdivisions in the Valley must be built up to the standards for major subdivisions. A minor subdivision is four lots or less or lots of 40 acres on larger parcels. The requirement will require developers to submit more detailed plans for subdivisions and to provide more off-site improvements.

"I've been asking for that for 20 years," Van Zander said.

He was less happy with the Val Verde Drive recommendation, saying the area is ideal for high-density multi-family housing. The subcommittee had supported that type of land use.

Mel Steckler, who lives in the lower Valley area, was opposed to high density, however.

"It would be a definite mistake not to preserve the Carmel Valley residential character there," he said.

"It just boggles my mind, Mel," Van Zander said. "Denying it right in the most obvious place where we have a developed commercial area."

Steckler and the rest of the committee—Van Zander dissenting—voted for a one-acre minimum unless the units are clustered, in which case the density would be four to the acre.

THE COMMITTEE accepted general definitions of "development zones" for the Valley while indicating it does not intend to restrict growth to just those zones.

At the mouth of the Valley, the committee wants development concentrated between Highway 1 and the Val Verde area (west of the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge) and between the shopping center and the High Meadows subdivision to the north and south.

At Mid-Valley, the development zone stretches from the Begonia Gardens on the west to the Carmel Valley Ranch, and from Robinson Canyon to Tierra Grande on the north.

The Village development zone goes from Laureles Grade to an area just east of the Village, and from the Carmel River to the hillsides above the Village.

Chris Keehn emphasized that the development zones should merely be where growth is encouraged, without excluding development outside those zones. Many of the more desirable pieces of development property in the Valley are outside the development zones.

The committee refused to endorse the Odello proposal to build 97 condominiums, a 200-unit motel and an open air market on part of the farmland south of the Carmel River and east of Highway 1. Van Zander said this would assure preservation of 70 acres of farmland.

The panel endorsed a position which would grant no development rights to land which otherwise would have none under the master plan or the county general plan.

Van Zander said this would wipe out the committee's slope density formula, which allows a fraction of a unit per acre on steep slopes. This fraction could be used to concentrate construction on a large parcel, leaving the remainder of the land in open space.

The committee also agreed that there should be more land set aside for multi-family housing at Mid-Valley, but could not agree where.

It rejected a move to rezone the 10.3-acre Carmel Unified School District property on Robinson Canyon Road for multi-family housing. Opponents argued that this would increase traffic along the road.

REZONING PART OF the Berwick property immediately west of the shopping center also was discussed. This faces a potential snag because the dilapidated barn on the property is on the National Register of Historic Places. It is the site of a once-extensive pear packing and shipping business that brought agricultural recognition to Carmel Valley in the 1880s.

Four wells, two motels and a carnival

Planners have busy slate of use permit hearings

Four wells, two motels and a carnival, all proposed for Carmel Valley, will come up for use permit hearings next Wednesday and Thursday before two Monterey County planning bodies.

California-American Water Co. will request use permits from the planning commission for four new deep-water wells. The wells would increase the utility's production capacity by 5,000 acre-feet per year, according to company vice president Richard Sullivan. The wells would be located on the eastern end of the Rancho Canada Golf Course; on the west side of San Carlos Road, just west of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club; and two just west of Cypress Lane.

That hearing is set at 10:30 a.m.

The carnival is proposed by Foley and Buck Shows in the Lower Valley. That hearing is set at 2 p.m.

The motel use permits will be heard before Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon on Thursday. The Valley Lodge at Ford and Carmel Valley Roads is asking permission to add 14 rooms, bringing total accommodations to 31 units. Owner Peter Coakley also is asking to add a meeting room to the motel.

Carmel Properties, Inc. is asking to build a 45-room motel and 140-seat restaurant on Rio Road between the Holiday Inn and the County Service Area 43 fire station.

The proposal is a scaled-down version of the 128-room Rio Road Motel project withdrawn by the company last year after a state appellate court ruled there were improprieties in the issuance of a use permit in 1974. The permit was voided by the ruling. The city of Carmel filed the original suit.

Slimmon will review the motel proposals at 2:05 p.m. and at 2:15 p.m.

Both the planning commission and zoning administrator conduct meetings in the county supervisors' chambers in Salinas.

Lyceum summer workshop plans free concert in Carmel

The Lyceum-Carmel Bach Festival Summer Instrumental Workshop will present a demonstration concert next Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Ninth and Lincoln, in Carmel. The public is invited and admission is free.

Among the 42 young musicians selected last spring at Lyceum auditions were Laura Bennett, Ruth Griffin, Joshua Kim, Lisa Paik, Michael Colvin and Edward Doolittle, all of Carmel Valley.

These students now are completing a three-week program of instruction which included orchestral and ensemble playing, group and private lessons, listening perception, introduction to music theory and music history and visits to rehearsals of the Carmel Bach Festival.

The program is administered by the Lyceum Music Committee including Mrs. Paul Rembert, chairman, and committee member Mrs. George Sackman, both of Carmel Valley, and Mrs. Ronald Weitzman, Carmel.

Support for the summer music workshops came from the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club and those of Marina, Monterey and Pacific Grove, the Monterey Jazz Festival, Valley Guild of Salinas, Bing Crosby Youth Fund, Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, 39 Craftsmen, the Packard Foundation and numerous private donors. Also, the Church of the Wayfarer and All Saints' Church, which generously provide their Carmel facilities.

Last Wednesday's demonstration concert was presented by the Lyceum-Carmel Bach Festival Summer Choral Workshop. Among the 32 students participating were John Bradley, Lynnie Kramer, Andrea Epel and Robin Pease, all from Carmel Valley.

Bible School opens Monday

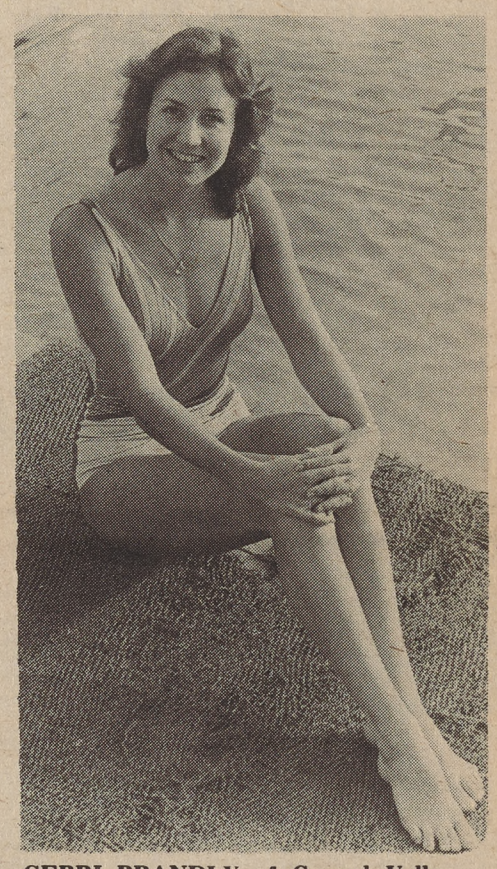
"Sing a New Song" is the theme of the Vacation Bible School which will open Monday in the education building of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel.

The following 10 songs, written by two professional musicians, will be taught to the students and presented as a musical during closing day ceremonies. The songs to be rehearsed during each morning opening service from 9:30 to 10 a.m. are: My Best Friend, primary grades; David Sang This Song, nursery department; and What Does a Shepherd Boy Do?" kindergarten.

I'll Care for You was written for primary and middlers; and the high school youth group will learn I Can Smile, Let the Saviour Come into Your Heart and Sing Alleluia. The junior compositions are It's a Love Song, a Praise Song and a Hope Song.

Registration blanks for the two-week nondenominational program may be obtained at the General Store, Mid-Valley Pharmacy and Safeway; and the Chapel Thrift Shop.

Those unable to pre-register are invited by codirectors Florence Johnson and Betty Williams to meet with the Registrar on Monday morning.



GERRI BRANDLY of Carmel Valley, a 1976 graduate of Carmel High and former member of the Cypress Synchronized Swim Club, took first place in the Junior National Outdoor Solo and Duet Meet at Kansas City, Mo., during the Independence Day weekend. A two-time All-American team member, Gerri now is with the National and International Championship team of the Santa Clara Aquamaids. She will participate with the Aquamaids in the Senior National Outdoor Championships at the State University of New York in Purchase, N.Y., on July 16 through July 22 and in the III World Aquatic Games in West Berlin on Aug. 20 through Aug. 29. Having accepted a synchronized swimming scholarship, Gerri will enter the University of Arizona at Tucson in the fall.

Valley girl honored as newest Monterey County 4-H All Star

Ashley Swanson, named one of the Monterey County 4-H All Stars, will be given this honor at the annual Monterey County 4-H Achievement Day on Sunday in King City.

All Star is the highest achievement given to 4-H members in the county. This recognition is awarded annually to those who have shown outstanding leadership skills, active and successful participation in 4-H and have benefited their county's 4-H program.

Ashley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Swanson, is only the third All Star to be selected from Carmel Valley since the inception of the local 4-H program. The other Valley members receiving this award were John Williams in 1956 and Jenny Walter Luce in 1957.

The selection is based on a group of applicants which is evaluated on a personal interview by a team of judges, accuracy and completeness of the 4-H record books and a panel discussion pertaining to the applicants knowledge of current events and local community affairs.

During the coming year, Ashley, a Buckeye 4-H Club member, and the three other winners—Antoinette Lambert, Salinas; Michelle Heady and Sam Daoro, Gonzales—will be planning and leading the county 4-H program.

Summer school circus Friday

Mary Kay King, Amelia Franke and Sue Estes, co-directors of the Tularcitos Summer School program, are completing the first session whose theme was "The Big Top" and will have a circus on Friday. Clowns will begin making up at 9:30 a.m. and the circus will begin at 10:15 a.m.

The public is cordially invited to view an exhibition of the 5-to-11-year-olds enrolled in the daily classes which have included art, woodworking and theater arts. Special invitations have gone to Vicki Owens and Catherine Scholink to bring their day care center charges.

The directors would like to express their thanks to the Valley young people who have volunteered assistance during the first session. Charlotte Garrett of Carmel Middle School, who is a member of the Monterey Peninsula Twirling Group, taught a flag-baton routine which will be included in the circus program; Larry Cisneros, an enthusiastic 11-year-old model builder has been in charge of the budding model builders; and class assistance has been provided by Middle School students; Ann Sackman, Jennifer Buckner and May Lim.

Proposition 13 'games'

Dear Editor:

Since the passage of Proposition 13, the only audible message from the taxpayers to the people living at Rippling River, a facility for the physically handicapped and the elderly, would appear to be "you're expendable." But, I happen to believe all taxpayers don't feel this way.

I can't help but wonder if it is fair to put all the blame on the passage of Prop. 13. As a result of its passage, nearly all activities have been taken away from here. It's hard to believe that some alternatives weren't waiting in the wings in case the Jarvis-Gann initiative was approved. Surely, something can and must be done. Is Prop. 13 really as destructive as we are being led to believe? Or are those being affected by Prop. 13 merely political pawns trapped in a quicksand of political games? I believe the chaos and panic to be deliberate weapons for them to say "look at all the disruption you voted for—it's your fault, not ours."

I'm fed up with being made a political pawn! If it's a game, it's a sick one!

Carmel Point suggestion

Dear Editor:

The report carried in the Pine Cone about what to do with Carmel Point (June 22) made extremely interesting reading. I have been carefully studying it and you will be glad to know I have now come up with the perfect solution:

Close Scenic Road at the south end so that it can only be used by residents, enlarge the river parking lot and devote a narrow strip of the road on the ocean side to a 15-inch gauge railroad running between the river parking lot and the bottom of Ocean Avenue, with stops at appropriate points where passengers can walk down steps to the beach or rocks. This should stop erosion, channel traffic where it is wanted and improve the environment for residents.

I have canvassed my friends about this and they all think it is a good idea—provided the Pine Cone pays for it. So how about it Al—any chance?

Brian W. Ashurst

(Editor's note: I favor the idea and will bring it up to the board of Old Carmel the next time it meets.)

More support needed

Dear Editor:

In your column "Kudos for dedicated panel" (June 29) regarding the Carmel Valley Master Plan Advisory Committee, you close with:

"Carmel Valley is fortunate because it has an alert, involved citizenry that has proven time and again that it will fight to preserve the fragile beauty of the Valley."

I wonder.

Recently, I attended a meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners' Association board and was impressed at this group of dedicated, hardworking people, who spend many hours, day and night, in Valley Preservation efforts. I don't believe the CVPOA members have any realization of their great efforts.

On Wednesday, June 28, I attended the meeting of the Monterey County Planning Commission in Salinas, when it labeled the Rancho Canada Marriott proposal "inconsistent." I was one of the small group that wore yellow badges indicating opposition to Marriott. The room carried a sign indicating legal capacity of 120 persons. Not nearly that amount were present!

The CVPOA, and the "fragile Valley" especially, sorely need more visible, vocal, active supporters.

recommended by Middleton, Mrs. Drew and Mrs. Foote include several parcels with projects in the planning stage. These include the Village Houses, a 25-unit condominium proposal in a zone recommended by the committee for multi-family housing; the Mercurio subdivision, a 23-lot land split adjacent to Tierra Grande at Mid-Valley, in an area recommended for denser housing construction; Cypress Greens, a 50-lot moderate-income subdivision just east of the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. It is situated on Val Verde Drive, a 40-acre strip of open space suggested for high-density multi-family housing.

The Barbara Marks property in the Village, where a 100-room tennis ranch project was blocked by a lawsuit, would be put in a commercial zone for shops and offices rather than resort use. Vista Nadura, a 250-lot subdivision proposal adjacent to Carmel Valley Manor, falls outside the areas proposed for more intensive development.

The Carmel Valley Ranch property at Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon Roads is included in the intensive development area recommended by the three-member committee that produced the map.

THE MASTER PLAN committee made the most headway in defining future growth in the Village area, aided by recommendations from the Village Committee, a business group looking for ways to maintain and improve the character of the Village.

Suggestions presented by Peter Coakley, a committee member and owner of the Valley Lodge motel, include adding pedestrian paths through the Village that would encourage foot traffic and reduce car traffic; undergrounding utilities and adding "quaint" street lighting; requiring more landscaping around businesses; limiting the size of businesses to keep chain stores out of the Village; and permitting development of shops with apartments above where store owners or artisans could live and work in a European-type atmosphere.

The Village Committee also backed a reduction in commercial zoning for the community, restricting it to a central core area rather than stringing out from Ford Road past Rippling River as it now does.

Difficulties arose in deciding how to redesignate uses for the land. Mary Ann "Corky" Matthews said much of the property should not be changed from commercial to multi-family housing because the original commercial zoning was an error.

"There is no reason we have to be saddled for all time with that mistake," she said.

Changing the zoning to multi-family use would create a potential 300 apartment units on the estimated 50 acres under consideration, she said. This would aggravate the existing traffic and sewage problems in the area.

The group generally agreed to limit multi-family zoning to the area from Ford Road to Del Fino Place on the north side of Carmel Valley Road (this includes the area of the 25-unit Village Houses townhouse proposal). With the exception of the Mathias property, all other areas to be rezoned would revert to single-family use.

The issue will be discussed further when there is a recommendation on use of the Carmel Valley airstrip land. Some committee members want the entire airport converted to apartment and townhouse development.

Cal-Am Water Company asks for permits to drill

California-American Water Co. will ask for use permits to drill four new deep wells in the lower Carmel Valley at the Monterey County Planning Commission meeting on July 12.

The permit hearing is scheduled in the supervisors' chambers of the county courthouse in Salinas.

The new wells would increase the company's production capacity by 5,000 acre-feet per year, according to company vice president Richard Sullivan.

The wells would be located on the west side of San Carlos Road, near the river and just west of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club; on the east side of the Rancho Canada Golf Course, just west of Via Mallorca; and two would be sunk west of Cypress Lane.

All four well sites are on the south side of Carmel Valley Road.

The Lower Carmel Valley Advisory Committee has recommended denial of the use permits until a study is complete on the effects of all Cal-Am wells on riverbank vegetation.

That study, by the CH2M Hill Co., is due to be completed in July and will recommend mitigation measures to protect the vegetation. While they live, the plants serve as a natural flood control aid by strengthening river banks with their root systems.

W. Grant Gray, artistic director of the troupe, has directed dance and theater companies in California, Illinois and New York. He earned his doctorate in dance and theater from the University of Utah and is the director of De Anza's dance department.

Supervisors reject claim for negligence in damage

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors has rejected an $87,000 claim for damages filed by a Carmel Valley landowner who said county negligence caused two acres of his property to be washed away during the heavy winter rains.

The claim was filed by Scott Ramsden of Orinda, who owns 31 acres of land at Schulte and Carmel Valley Roads, downstream from the Schulte Road Bridge.

Ramsden said the county and flood control district program for removal of dead trees and brush in the Carmel River channel resulted in all the brush—living and dead—being cleared from the riverbank portions of his land in January and February.

"The county and district knew or should have known that removal of all the vegetation from the claimant's riverbank on an outside bend of the Carmel River would result in serious erosion," Ramsden's claim stated.

When the river rose on Feb. 20, the shoreline land eroded because it was "stripped of all vegetation," it said.

Ramsden claimed that the problem would have been alleviated had the county taken steps to protect the land or to notify him of the possibility of erosion.

Big Sur holds community fire meeting

Residents of the Palo Colorado, Garrapata and Bixby Creek area are invited to participate in a community fire meeting Saturday at 10 a.m. in the parking lot at Rocky Point restaurant on Highway 1.

Members of the California Division of Forestry and the local volunteer fire crew will call attention to particular fire hazards in the area, as well as demonstrate basic firefighting techniques. A representative of the Big Sur Fire Department will describe the formation and training of its firefighting force and discuss ways in which the Palo Colorado area might further develop its fire organization.

Paving work begins this month on portions of Valley Greens Drive

Paving work will start this month on various portions of shoulder area on Valley Greens Drive.

The project will encompass two work areas. The area east of the Carmel River will have the existing shoulder removed and replaced by asphaltic concrete and the area west of the Carmel River will have a seal coat applied to the existing shoulder area.

The proposal calls for a 50-foot setback from Carmel Valley Road with a landscaped pedestrian pathway on the property for public use. The path and a share of the expense for putting in a left turn lane at Ford and Carmel Valley Roads were other "community problems" the development will help solve, he said.

In order to do this, Evenson said, the highest possible density should be allowed.

He noted that the development was supported by the Carmel Valley Property Owners' Association, the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee.

The advisory committee recommended only 20 units, however, expressing concern about the high density. Commissioner Paul Patchick agreed, suggesting 21 units in the development.

Commissioner Marc Del Piero agreed the proposal was "a tad too dense," but moved that the rezoning permit 22 units. Patchick seconded the motion, which passed on a 5-0 vote. Commissioners Peter Cailotto, Manuel Jiminez, William Peters and Charlie Williams were absent.

Valley Youth Center elects new board

A new slate of candidates swept into office on the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center board of directors last Thursday, declaring a primary commitment to youth programs and activities.

All six incumbents up for election to the 13-member board were defeated and a new group of officers was elected by the board following the general vote. Nearly 100 Valley residents turned out to choose the new directors.

Elected to the board were Larry Gardner, Rudy Lamar, Randy Randazzo, Marian Englund, Dr. John Von Berg and Jerry Kurz.

Chosen by the board of directors as officers for the coming year were Larry Gardner, president; Pete Garneau, vice president; Doreen McKenzie, recording secretary; Marge O'Hara, corresponding secretary; and Jim Corso, treasurer.

Gardner said Friday that "my prevailing philosophy differs from the previous board. I believe the facility is there for the purposes of youth activities primarily. It is the board function to provide for that facility."

Gardner said he wants the board of directors to become involved in and supportive of all youth activities in the Valley—4-H clubs, scouting, Little League and the Barracuda swim team.

"They all can come to the board for our support," he said.

The center will rely on community support to finance its operations, he said.

The past board had hired the first full-time youth activities director in recent years. John Harrison will be directing center programs at least through September, keeping the center open regularly every day of the week except Wednesday and Thursday.

In addition to scheduled and drop-in activities, youngsters using the center already have started a snack bar there for those coming to the center or using the community pool.

The board of directors will continue its regular schedule of meeting on the last Thursday of each month. The next board meeting is July 27 at 8 p.m. The location will be announced later.

Preserve as open space

San Clemente Ranch sold

TEN FAMILIES from Carmel Valley, the Peninsula and the San Francisco Bay Area have purchased the 1,600-acre San Clemente Ranch in the Valley with the intention of preserving it as open space.

The land around the Carmel River between the San Clemente and Los Padres Dams was sold by the Pebble Beach Corporation for a reported $350,000. The corporation bought the land in 1919.

One of the buyers, Charles Page, a Monterey attorney and city councilman, said the group is "basically interested in preserving the property."

"It may sound mundane, but I would like to have my grandchildren be able to walk along a stretch of river that has been undisturbed," he told the Outlook Wednesday.

Page said there could be some public access to the property, likely in the form of Sierra Club hikes or similar outings. For the present, access will be limited to individuals accompanied by the families that purchased the land.

Water rights on the property are restricted under provisions dating to the sale of San Clemente Reservoir to the predecessor of the California-American Water Co., according to Page. The dam site was sold in 1930 by the Pebble Beach Corp.

The landowners can use groundwater on the property as long as the water company doesn't need it, he said. Riparian water rights, which allow owners to take water from the river, were sold to Cal-Am.

The property had been offered for sale and Page had acted as legal counsel on behalf of Pebble Beach Corp., according to Dick McClelland, manager of the corporation's planning and development division. When several potential sales were not consummated, Page decided to form the group of private buyers, said McClelland.

THE RANCH PROPERTY borders the river on two sides for about five river miles between the reservoirs, Page said. The new owners plan no improvements except to restore an old homestead cabin on the property in the Murphy's Flats area.

Purchasers include the Douglas E. Chappels of Carmel Valley; attorney Laurence P. Horan and his wife, Jean, of Carmel Valley; Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Hooker of Monterey; the Charles R. Kellers, an attorney with the firm of Hoge, Fenton and Appel in San Jose; Page and his wife, Caroline, of Monterey; San Francisco attorney Edward D. Landels and his daughter Marcia Hyman; Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Stotler of Monterey; Navy Capt. Joseph M. Tulley Jr. (ret.) and his wife, Ruth, of Monterey; San Francisco attorney Frederick M. Pownall and his wife, Susan; and Jay M. and Kip J. Hudson of Monterey.

Page said some members of the group also purchased the Big Creek property in Big Sur in an effort to preserve it several years ago. That land has been taken over by the Nature Conservancy, he said.

"We are pleased that this private group of families has purchased this property," said Robert D. Grace, vice president of the Pebble Beach Corp. real estate division. "It is a beautiful piece of land and I'm sure everyone on the Monterey Peninsula will be pleased that such a concerned group of people are the buyers."

No terms of the sale contract require the new owners to preserve the land in its natural state, McClelland said.

Until about three years ago, Twin Rivers Lodge, a hunters' and fishermen's club, had leased much of the property, said McClelland. The lease had dated back to 1948, he added.

Five local students earn honors at York

Five students from Carmel earned high honors from York School in Monterey for maintaining straight-A grade-point averages during the past school year.

They are Sharon Lee, Rafe Mazzeo, Sioban Scanlon, Karen Weitzman and Leora Weitzman.

Four students from Carmel Valley and eight from Carmel also maintained averages of B or better.

From the Valley, the students were Laura Bennett, Karen Parker, Tori McCusker and David Sackman.

From Carmel, they were Jennifer Beck, Lillian Dean, Paul Dean, Blake Forrest, Sylvia Laurmann, Carol Lloyd, Nina McCusker and Sari Scanlon.

Valley woman on dean's list

Kathryn J. Blevens of Carmel Valley is on the dean's list at Chico State University.

Miss Blevens, a junior majoring in recreation administration, maintained a minimum 3.5 grade-point average during the spring semester.

Six-week learning experience announced for Wednesdays at St. Phillip's Lutheran Church

St. Phillip's Lutheran Church on West Carmel Valley Road and Schulte has announced a six-week two-hour learning experience for adults and children to be given at the church each Wednesday between July 26 and Aug. 30 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Pre-registration is scheduled at the church next Wednesday. The fee is $5.

The program schedule is: Music Readiness and Crafts (4-7-year-olds); and Outside Games and Crafts (8-11-year-olds). Adults will have an opportunity to participate in a discussion of The Kink and I authored by James D. Mallory Jr.; an Introduction to the Organ; or hear six outside speakers.

Speakers include: Dr. William Fryback, Bio Feedback; Glenda Kyle of the Behavioral Science Institute; Betty Iverson, Nutrition; Gordon Andrews, a landscape artist; Dr. Janet Hurly, a family counselor; and William Stone Jr., a local artist and Carmel High instructor.

For further information you may phone mini-college coordinator, Jean Hiasson, 624-9148, or the church, 624-6765.

He wants state office, but a home life, too

Supervisor Sam two years later

Sam Farr grew up near politics. His father was a state senator and later, attending the University of Santa Clara, he became acquainted with Jerry Brown. Brown, as governor, appointed him to the board of supervisors and Farr later was elected in 1976. Now 36 and the father of a newborn daughter, delivered June 21 at Community Hospital, Farr was asked to sit down and reflect on his term and talk about his plans for the future.

What have been some of your successes since you've been on the board?

When I first came on the board of supervisors, the day I was appointed I think was the day the (Public Utilities Commission) came down with the water meter moratorium. So, I've been living with the water issue as sort of my first crisis.

And this year the water district was voted in.

Which I feel good about because I was very active in forming what was first a joint powers agency of the mayors and the supervisors. We felt that the county politically and certainly financially just couldn't solve the Peninsula's water problems. There were several different projects we started to work on. The first was to ask for a tax rate for Zone 11 (the Peninsula water management advisory agency). That failed, so then we put our energies into formation of a water district. We held the public hearings at the same time we went into a rationing program, so we had an awful lot of irons in the fire going in different directions. I'm very, very happy because I think the best long-range legal and financial solution was the formation of the water district. Now that it's a fait accompli I'm very excited about it.

Of course, Jarvis has a great impact on that district in that any new government that comes into being does not immediately have cash on hand. The passage of Prop. 13 puts all of that in a legal limbo. I think our immediate problem is that we're not going to be able to manage the district in the short term as well as we had thought we might be able to. We still have all those abilities there—we can still get loans from the federal and state government, we can get grants. It's going to take a while. My recommendation, though I'm not a member of the district board, would be let's wait through the summer and see what kind of financial situation the district will be in.

Water, except for the financial end at least, has more or less solved itself as a political issue. Were there other things that you were really looking to focus on where some progress has been made?

Yes. I was absolutely amazed about the proliferation of government at the local level. We have some 210 units of government in the county that rely on property taxes if you include all the outstanding bond issues.

It seems to me that that's an awful lot of government to try and keep track of if you're trying to follow it. I felt that we ought to work toward consolidation of government, we ought to eliminate government entities that are obsolete. We needed a good housecleaning.

We also needed to shift the financial support for services away from the property tax. So a couple things that I began my first year and I've seen some improvement in: one was to ask the administration to come up with what we call fees for service. Essentially they go through every department and find out what services we can legally charge for. If we are charging, find out if the fees have been recently updated. It's taken a lot more work than I thought because the county had never kept track of these things. This year's budget will have for the first time a fee schedule separate. We've gone through all the ordinances piled up in the corners and found out that in 1941 we charged $10 for a service and we really haven't updated that. These can be changed according to the economics of providing the service.

The other thing is to charge fees and the area where it was easiest to do that was the health department. I think we've generated almost $200,000, which means if we get those from a certain clientele, we can lower the cost to the general public. I've seen some really good benefits from that. I think the county should have moved faster on that.

Was there much resistance on the board to this?

The present board hasn't really gotten into it. The previous board, which had quite a bit of experience with public administration, felt it was a good policy. I'm not sure how this board feels, although it has directed the hiring of a consultant to look at all our fees and recommend in this year's budget how we can update them. On an equity basis, it makes a lot of sense. Why should the owner of a piece of residential property have to pay for the inspection of, say, a restaurant kitchen or the cost of a developer doing an environmental impact report?

Any other priorities?

A third area that we really haven't done much on is to consolidate local government. At my urging, the board held a night session this year to consider all the boards and commissions. We made a motion to eliminate all those that hadn't met for seven years and that eliminated some 30. We still have some 54 boards and commissions in Monterey County. What we need to do is review those. Another thing in the proliferation of local government is that we have a lot of single-purpose entities. Probably the best examples are the sanitary districts in Carmel and Pebble Beach that are really set up to provide one small service for one segment of society and they're not set up to manage water resources.

I don't think that in the short run that anybody's for these districts to be eliminated or be consolidated, but in the long range you may find that you get a better economy of scale. I also find that where people complain about the proliferation of government is at the local level. But they don't really want to jump in and eliminate anybody because that's violation of local control. Maybe the awareness of how much local government we have will be a benefit coming out of Prop. 13.

It would seem that maybe this is another avenue for getting people to participate in government, rather than another layer of government for them to have to work through.

I'm not against boards and commissions. I just think we ought to review what we have on the books and we ought to adopt a policy about setting them up. Right now we could eliminate probably half a dozen and no one would bat an eye.

I don't like the way we make appointments to boards and commissions. In an otherwise totally open public meeting, any member of the board can at the end of the day suggest 'I nominate John Jones to serve on X commission' and we just pass it. I think that name ought to appear on the agenda and the following week we vote on it so at least there's public review. A lot of my colleagues just think that that's one of the privileges of being in office, that you get to appoint without any public scrutiny. I was the first board member to advertise in the newspapers for vacancies on boards and commissions and I've seen that become popular among other members of the board.

You didn't mention the growth management issue which seems to generate much concern in the Carmel-Big Sur area. Is that something where you can see progress or change—good or bad—over the course of the last few years?

The county has become more conscious of the impact of growth from the standpoint of cost to the public and from the standpoint of esthetic awareness. I think that my discussing it and the fact that I am a constant clipper of articles in newspapers and pass that information on to the board members, I think that they have become more aware of it. It's an educational process.

At the state level, a lot of people with the same kinds of philosophies I have are making state policy and I think it's very healthy. Just from a management sense, it makes sound economic sense not to have helter-skelter development.

A lot of that has been based on the land ethic of the West where, if you run out of a resource, out of developable land, you move over the mountain and start a new life. We've found—from the East, where we saw the decay of the inner city and are now having to pump billions of tax dollars back into the urban centers—that it's ridiculous to allow this decay of an urbanized area. We ought to concentrate growth and development where we have all those facilities which are becoming incredibly expensive to build at the taxpayer's expense.

We must say we recognize the cities and the spheres of influence of the cities and we ought to concentrate our development within the cities and not go out and build in the rural areas where we have to bring roads, sewers and power lines and at the same time degrade the ring of mountains that makes this such an esthetically comfortable place to live.

Everybody who lives in this area will say they live in Carmel and what they identify with living in Carmel is not just the city limits, but the esthetic quality of the mountains around Carmel, from the ridgeline at Del Monte Forest to Point Lobos. All of those things are the physical character of what we call Carmel, yet none of those lands are in the political jurisdiction of the city of Carmel.

Over the years, a feeling has surfaced in Carmel Valley and Big Sur that maybe they should incorporate. Is this something that might be considered a little more seriously? Is it asking for too much to expect a supervisor from other areas to represent the interests of Carmel?

The right of self-determination is important, but incorporation is the wrong tool. Incorporation in California law is only to provide urban services, to essentially citify an area which needs to be a city because it is no longer a rural area. Those who say that to incorporate is really to remain rural have failed to look at other tools that are available. I think the Coastal Act provides a unique opportunity for counties in rural areas on the coastline to not only come up with a very specific master plan, but to implement it with zoning and then to require enforcement. Obviously, to enforce it, you're going to have to have a lot of citizen participation. Without having the tremendous costs of urban services, you can still have a great degree of local control. I don't think you have to set up a city to do it.

There are many different interpretations of Prop. 13. One is that not only is government costing too much, but there's too much government. Could that be interpreted to mean people don't want as much land use planning if they have to go through layers of government?

I think there's a lot of feeling that there's too much government control. Perhaps we did too many things that we shouldn't be doing, we need to encourage volunteerism. To go out and take care of society from the cradle to the grave I think is not an appropriate approach. On the other hand, as you start to talk about eliminating these government services, you're going to find a tremendous constituency here to say, well, 'That's not what we meant!'

When you go beyond that, I think they're saying, you've got so damn much delay, so much processing to go through. That's time, money, delay. Particularly on land use, a lot of counties are way ahead of us on this. They've really come up with growth policies and growth controls. You lay it all out very specifically and there is not this big delay game which upsets everybody.

Why not spell out the policies very clearly and give a yes or no answer right away?

I don't think the people in this area are saying we want everything to be easy, we want developers to be able to do anything they want.

I think that one of these frustrations that Prop. 13 is speaking to is saying, 'Look, government, manage.' You normally talk about managing money, but they're saying manage your resources. They're watching this energy crisis and they're watching the problems of the environment and water quality, air quality. They know we're responsible. I think they're saying get in there and do the job.

What do you think about the board of supervisors, as far as its composition and the competence of members as individuals?

The members of the board reflect characteristics of the county. Looking at other counties, we probably have a balanced board that is very conservative. It's not a bad board, we don't really fight, we all get along with one another. There's a tremendous array of personalities and age groups and backgrounds. I'm a minority in its philosophy—maybe I'm not a minority because I don't lose everything, but I represent a philosophy that is on one side of the scale and I'm sure Ken Blohm (of North County), on environmental issues, represents a philosophy that's on the other side of the scale. It's necessary and really proper to decision making to have those philosophies. If you get all balanced in one area, you go off without thinking about the problems you've created. Society seems to find that out and to make adjustments.

The general public has a hard time understanding that need for balance in a political body because their interests are special interests and they wouldn't like to see that special interest defeatable.

It's really tough to get into a lot of discussion about (the personalities on the board). I think the problem with Monterey County, regardless of the personalities on the board, is the fact that we are such a large county we don't get together, we don't socialize, we don't get to know one another as well as we should. But we really don't have a lot of the petty problems that often arise in a board of supervisors.

Are there other projects or ideas you look back on with pride that you have been involved in on the board?

It really is difficult to take credit, because you just don't do anything by yourself. You serve as a catalyst, but it's not a dictatorial thing that Farr can take credit for. But I very much saw the need to have a master plan for Carmel Valley and for Del Monte Forest and Big Sur.

Looking back, we are in the greatest planning revision in this county's history. With the help of the Coastal Act, we will be able to set up guidelines by 1980 that really review where we want to go. I'm very excited about that. By the time I leave office, we will essentially have a master plan for all of the Fifth District and every city and bit of unincorporated area will have its own long-range plan.

I hope there will be some growth management policies in Carmel Valley.

Often board chairman Dusan Petrovic will ask how the local advisory committee voted on a planning matter. Is that an indication that these local, most neighborly levels of government are having an impact?

Very much so because that's really neighborhood control. I guess I could classify my philosophy as that of constant reformer. As a kid, I used to always take things apart and put them back together, feeling they'd be better built after I oiled them. Whatever I've ever done, I've gone in and said there must be a better way.

Even with that, I think they constantly need review. I see our advisory committees can play a greater role than they play now. They're very vital. In order to make sure that we protect everybody, we ought to spell out what their powers are. As we find the need to get into more minute detail on planning issues, and that detail ought to be decided on the local level, we ought to give them more responsibilities.

I've heard some discussion of district realignment to make the areas as homogenous as possible. Would it be a good move to take a portion of the Monterey city area from the Fifth District and tack on Cachagua, which is really an extension of the Carmel Valley and probably representative of the same type of interests? Would that lend itself to better government at the supervisorial level?

I'm not sure that it would, but I think it's necessary. It's awkward to cut a city like Monterey in half. It's awkward to cut the Carmel Valley in half.

If you're talking about the best of all possible worlds, perhaps every 50 or 100 years there ought to be a statewide review of all governmental boundaries. A lot of counties, like Monterey, were established historically. You could argue that politically and economically those boundaries are hard to administer and you need to set up all these other agencies to handle administration in a particular area. You look at Monterey County and I'm very proud of this county from an historical standpoint, but from a modern, political, management standpoint it's very awkward. Someone suggested if you're trying to look at political boundaries in California, you might do it on a watershed basin basis. Most populations and economic concerns are really tied to watershed basins. If you think about that in Monterey, it might be a very interesting approach. You'd essentially have a coastal county and a Salinas Valley county. If you want to stop the proliferation of single-purpose governments, which is something this state's got to do, we've got to look at whether we could have better delivery of services if we reorganize boundaries. We have 47 county service areas and 29 special districts and numerous other miscellaneous districts, in addition to 12 cities, 27 school districts and one county.

Do you think after all of the rearranging necessary under Prop. 13 that the county will perform its function better, as well or worse, not in terms of the services provided, but how it provides the services?

I don't know. I certainly want that. That's a goal that could be very beneficial out of Prop. 13. Normally in a crisis you fall back on your strength which historically has been "the way we used to do it." This is a time when we need to sit down and say, 'Let's not do it the way we used to, let's do it new.' How much of that creative thinking will come out of this crisis is what a lot of people are looking for.

For yourself, personally, do you look for another term on the board or more than one more term?

That's always a difficult decision to make because I've learned in politics that you can set some goals, but the electorate really has a big role in whether you can accomplish those goals. I've got a lot of competing interests, my family that's about to be created. And I do want to be around to be a good husband and a good father, and one of the trends in politics seems to be that it's the jealous mistress of your time. You've got to be out among the people all the time.

I enjoy being out there, but I have to find a balance that is satisfactory to my wife. I like living and working here. I think that, on one hand, the nature of the office of supervisor has tremendous potential politically. It's one of the most exciting political offices you could serve in because you don't have two houses of the legislature to deal with, you don't have to get 40 votes in the Assembly and 20 votes in the Senate in order to get your ideas through. You have the ability to move faster. In the best of all possible worlds, with an ideally intelligent elective body and a very capable staff, I think the potential is unlimited.

The nature of the system is such that you perpetuate the people who are interested and capable on to higher office. I'm not sure that is always good.

I don't know. On the one hand, people approach me and say, 'We think you're able and capable of much greater things.' I haven't decided yet. I worked with the legislature for a long time. I would like to serve in the legislature.

I don't think the general public would think of me as the most fiscally conservative supervisor, but at my instigation, some major fiscal changes have been made, particularly lowering of the tax rate. I don't have any industry in my district. The first budget session I sat in on as a member of the board of supervisors, I made a motion to take all the money we could legally take out of the road fund and transfer it to the general fund. Well, that was a $2.2 million shift which allowed us to lower the property tax rate by about 25 cents. That's a significant amount of money.

Youth Center screens 'Cream'

Cream: The Farewell Concert will be screened next Tuesday night at the Carmel Valley Community Center, Ford and Carmel Valley Roads. It is the first movie in what will be a regular film series this summer.

The concert film by one of the top British rock groups of the 1960s and early 1970s will be shown at 8 p.m. The program at the community center will include other short films as well.

A snack bar run by youths who use the community center will be open during the show.

Tickets for the film are $1.25 for anyone under 18 and $2 for persons 18 and over. Youth center activities director John Harrison said "chairs are optional" for the film and moviegoers should bring a blanket or pillow to sit on.

Daytime youth center programs are conducted Friday through Tuesday. More information is available from Harrison at the center or by phoning 659-9954.

Obituaries

Dorothy Murray

Mrs. Frederick S. (Dorothy) Murray, a resident of Carmel Valley for more than 25 years, died June 28 at the University Branch Convalescent Hospital in Menlo Park following a period of failing health. She was 80.

Born in Los Angeles, Mrs. Murray was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Stanford University, where she met her late husband, Feg Murray, who became an internationally famous syndicated cartoonist.

Mrs. Murray, who made her home most recently at Del Mesa Carmel, is survived by four children: Dr. John F. Murray of Berkeley, Alexander F. Murray of Pasadena, Mrs. Donald Thackery of Woodside and Mrs. James Boswell of Pasadena; also by 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Private family services have been conducted in Woodside.

Aileen Ethel Martin

Aileen Ethel Martin died last Thursday at Carmel Convalescent Hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 75.

A Monterey Peninsula resident for 44 years, she was a registered nurse at Community Hospital. She made her home at Carpenter and Fifth, before going to the convalescent hospital.

Mrs. Martin was born in San Francisco. She was a member of the Monterey Nurses Association, Chapter 26.

Recitation of the rosary was last Sunday and a Mass of Christian burial was said Monday, both at Carmel Mission Basilica. Burial was Wednesday at Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno.

Ethel S. Rogers

Ethel S. Rogers, 90, of Berkeley, who had been residing at the home of her daughter in Carmel Valley, died last Friday at her daughter's home.

Mrs. Rogers was born in Honolulu and lived in Berkeley most of her life.

Mrs. Rogers is survived by a daughter, Virginia S. Rogers of Carmel Valley; a son, Richard Rogers of Cape Coral, Fla.; and seven grandchildren.

Private cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. Inurnment was in Alameda County.

Kimberly Lou Sites

Graveside funeral services for 15-month-old Kimberly Lou Sites were given Monday at Cayucos Morro Bay Cemetery with the Rev. Paul Dear of Community Christian Church of Morro Bay officiating.

The child drowned Friday when she apparently fell into the family swimming pool in Carmel Valley. She was in the care of relatives while her parents were in Morro Bay.

The young girl was born in San Luis Obispo in March 1977.

Kimberly is survived by her parents, Chuck and Elaine Sites, who have residences in both Carmel Valley and Morro Bay; brothers Ernest Sites of Morro Bay and Tony De Garimore of Morro Bay; sisters Kit De Garimore of Cambria and Sissy Sites of Phoenix, Ariz.; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Pastel of Tarzana; paternal great-grandmother Sarah Rosecrans of Sun Valley; and maternal great-grandmother Jessis Boyles of Sylmar.

'Alice' matinees at Barnyard

Lewis Carroll's immortal Alice in Wonderland is brought to the stage in a new adaptation written by the Manhattan Theatre Project Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the Theatre in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

The play is staged at 2 p.m. each day.

Alice is the unforgettable story of a young girl's journey through the looking glass into a world of complete illusion, where she meets a host of unbelievable and fantastic characters.

Tickets, at $2.75, are available at the theater box office.

Rash of accidents on Valley Road

A Big Sur woman was injured Sunday when the car she was riding in was bumped from the rear on Carmel Valley Road by a second car driven by a Carmel youth.

The 1:55 p.m. accident occurred as Elton L. Brown of Big Sur was turning right from Carmel Valley Road to Carmel Rancho Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol. His wife, Helen, and son, David, were passengers in the car.

His car was hit from behind by a car driven by a 16-year-old Carmel boy.

Mrs. Brown complained of neck pain and was taken to Community Hospital, where she was treated and released. There were no other injuries.

Vehicles hit from behind

Two Carmel Valley residents were injured in separate accidents last week when their vehicles were struck from behind on Carmel Valley Road as they were waiting to turn left off the road. Three other people were also injured in the incidents.

Thomas Lloyd Moore, 42, of 25780 Tierra Grande Drive, was treated and released from Community Hospital on June 28 when his motorcycle was rear-ended by a car driven by Albert Otto Vogel, 77, of Carmel.

The 4:15 p.m. accident occurred as Moore was waiting to turn east on Los Arboles, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The second accident took place at 11:20 p.m. on Saturday, the CHP reported. Paul Dahle, 16, of 27080 Meadows Road, was waiting to turn left onto Meadows Road when his car was struck from behind by a car driven by June Duran, 58, of Pebble Beach.

Dahle's car was pushed forward into the path of a third car, driven by Elizabeth Moe, 26, of the Corral de Tierra area on Highway 68.

Dahle's passenger, Mark Miyamoto, 16, of 27120 Meadows Road, was treated and released from Community Hospital. Mrs. Duran and her husband, Frank, 67, also of Pebble Beach, were treated and admitted to the hospital. They were subsequently released.

Miss Moe was treated for her injuries and released.

Loses control, strikes tree

A Carmel man was injured Monday when his car sped out of control and struck a tree on Carmel Valley Road in the Cachagua area.

Charles M. Michael, 37, was taken by Carmel Valley Fire Department ambulance to Community Hospital where he was treated and later released following the 2 p.m. accident.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Michael was heading east on Carmel Valley Road 2.1 miles west of Tassajara Road when he lost control at high speed on a curve and drove off the road into a tree.

WARREN JOHN WOLFE of Carmel will play and sing Thursday, July 6, at the Buckeye, 65 W. Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley Village. (Niki Green photo)

"OF MICE AND MEN" stars Harold Peiken, left, and Henry Littlefield strolled down this dusty road in the Salinas Valley a few weeks ago to prepare for their roles as George and Lennie, which they play Thursday-Saturday evenings at the outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Valley film buffs form club to screen classics; membership open

A group of film buffs has formed a nonprofit organization based in Carmel Valley that plans to screen foreign and classic movies.

"We have secured the facilities of a very congenial local theater to view the films which we plan to show twice a month," said Dwight Marshall, an orchid grower from Carmel Valley. "But because of the size of the theater, memberships are limited to no more than 150."

He said memberships would be sold for $12

He said the group will be called the Monterey Peninsula Film Society. For additional information, phone 659-4795 or write to P.O. Box 355, Carmel Valley 93924.

Carmel Valley hospice plan wins approval of review panel

A Carmel Valley facility for treatment of terminally ill cancer patients won approval from the project review panel of the Mid-Coast Health Systems Agency last week.

Final authorization for the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula is expected when the agency governing board meets next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Hollister.

The hospice plan is for a six-patient center at 8900 Carmel Valley Road. Families of the patients would be able to stay at the hospice during the latter stages of their illness.

Executive Director Steve Connor told the project review panel the license for the hospice would be the first of its kind granted in the state.

There was no opposition to the license and it was recommended unanimously by the panel.

THE FAST-STEPPING Foggy Mountain Cloggers will entertain during the Salt Flats Hoedown in Salinas Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 7-9. They will dance at the Western Regional Fiddling Contest Saturday and at the Blue Grass Festival Sunday. Both events will be at the Salinas Community Center, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

Salt Flats Hoedown in Salinas

A fourteen-year-old girl who recently won the Grand Masters fiddling contest in Nashville will be one of the competitors in the Salt Flats Hoedown Friday-Sunday, July 7-9, at the Salinas Community Center, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

The Western Regional Fiddling Contest is scheduled Saturday at the community center. Eliminations begin at 8 a.m. and finals begin at 7:30 p.m. A fiddle-off at the end of the evening will determine the western regional champion.

Other events in the hoedown include a flat pick guitar contest Friday at 7:30 p.m. and a Blue Grass Festival Sunday, noon-6 p.m. The Blue Grass Festival will feature the River City Ramblers from Sacramento, Done Gone from the San Francisco Bay Area and The Overlook Mountain Boys from Santa Cruz.

Half-Arabs entered in Monterey show

More than 200 horses from all over California are entered in the 10th annual All Half-Arabian Horse Show Saturday and Sunday, July 8-9, in the Pattee Arena of the Monterey County Fairgrounds, Fairgrounds and Garden Rds., Monterey.

A half-Arabian horse is not "half a horse," but a horse sired by a purebred Arabian stallion out of a mare of any other breed. Popular crosses are Arab-Morgan (Morab) and Arab-Thoroughbred (Anglo-Arab). Half-Arabians are also frequently paints and pintos or "spotted horses," eligible for separate registrations and competition in special color classes. Half-Arabian horses are known for their variety, color and versatility under saddle and in harness.

Halter classes begin at 8 a.m. each day, and are followed by shows of the foals of 1977, older foals, young people's classes and championship classes in Western, English and Park Horse equitation. Saturday and Sunday afternoon shows begin at 1:30 p.m. The Saturday evening event begins at 7:30 p.m. and championship classes begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The horses will be seen in various classes, including cattle working, park action, costume and side-saddle. In the costume event, rider and horse are bedecked in authentic Arabian trappings.

The Arabian horse is so universally well known that everyone recognizes the ancient breed with its beautiful "dish face," tiny muzzle, high-arched neck and flowing mane and tail.

Its bloodlines carefully preserved for centuries by desert sheiks, the Arabian horse was exported on a very limited basis after the Crusades. It made an immediate mark on the horses of the world and is directly responsible for the creation of the English Thoroughbred and, in turn, Thoroughbred horses all over the world.

The show is sponsored by the Arabian Horse Association of Northern California and staged by its affiliate, the Gold Coast Arabian Horse Association.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children and servicemen. Family tickets are $5. Advance tickets are available through the Monterey American Legion Post #41, 375-9015. All proceeds of the show will be donated to charity.

For more information, phone 899-3725.

Forest Service reopens Ventana Wilderness trails

The United States Forest Service has reopened several trails in the Ventana Wilderness Area for public use this summer. According to Los Padres National Forest Supervisor Al West, most of the trails in the Ventana have been closed since last summer's Marble-Cone fire.

After a damage assessment this spring, the Forest Service has decided to open the following trails: Danish Creek, Skinner Ridge, South Fork Little Sur, Manual Peak, Bear Basin, Pine Ridge, Church Creek, Tassajara Hot Springs and South Fork Santa Lucia. The Chews Ridge Road from Jamesburg to China Camp has also been opened.

"We are glad to provide visitor access to this area again," West said. "Hikers in the fire area will have an opportunity to view the results of the fire and the land's recovery from last summer's conflagration."

Persons planning to enter the Ventana Wilderness are reminded to obtain a wilderness permit at any ranger's office.

Senior citizen tickets available for rodeo

Special senior citizen discount tickets are available for the 1978 California Rodeo in Salinas Thursday and Friday, July 13-14.

The tickets, at $3, will be for seats in the center grandstand section at the rodeo. The seats are placed low in the grandstand for easy access and have backs for greater comfort.

Special features of the 1978 California Rodeo include the Eh-Capa Bareback Riders of Boise, Idaho; Regular admission ranges from $4 to $8. Tickets are on sale at the little red ticket house directly in front of the grandstand on North Main Street or by mail, P.O. Box 1648, Salinas, Calif. 93902.
